1. Before you participate, be sure to thoroughly understand the basic knowledge and related risks of digital currency contract transactions and the business rules related to participating in the derivatives transactions.
2. The risks mentioned above are only enumerative, and we fail to provide a detailed list of all risk factors related to digital asset derivatives trading. Investors should also seriously consider and accept other possible risks before investing in digital asset derivatives trading.
3. We sincerely hope and advise investors to make a prudent decision on whether to participate in this contract transaction and rationally allocate their digital assets based on their own actual conditions such as risk tolerance. Dear user:
You have not yet opened the contract account and granted contract trading permission, please read the following terms carefully before deciding whether to open:

1. When you trade in the contract market, if the market price trend is against you and cause your position margin insufficient, CoinW perpetual contract will forced-liquidate your position according to the system agreement and disclose the details.

2. You must read carefully and comply with the business rules of the CoinW perpetual contract, understand the mechanism and operating principle of the contract, and understand all risks of the market.
